

THE WAR GIRL.
She wore a dress of navy blue.
The collar white and blue and red;
A striped belt—and stockings, too;
A sailor hat was on her head.
Red, white and blue her chaperone.
She had a flag beneath her chin.
She wore a badge—"U. S. S. Maine."
A tiny cannon for a pin.
She wore a shell-comb in her hair.
With army buttons all embossed;
Some swords were also sticking there.
And at her belt small rifles crossed.
Her pocketbook was knapsack shape.
Her smelling bottle a wee canteen.
Containing essence of "Crushed Grape."
The neatest thing I'd ever seen.
Her face was patriotic, too.
And full of everlasting charms:

CAMP AND HOSPITAL

Letters from Sergeant Wesley and
Corporal Wynkoop, of the Famous "Rough Riders."

TROOP E SADLY REDUCED

Heartrending Scenes Witnessed in Cuba—
Santa Fe Boys Brave Soldiers and Hard Fighters—Privations on Battle Field.

Santiago de Cuba, July 31.—Events have crowded one upon the other so rapidly of late that it has been almost impossible to find time to write, but we are now in camp with nothing to do save to rest after our exertions. It is pretty certain that the "Rough Riders" will shortly be moved to Long Island, N. Y., as their work is about over here. The boys have suffered greatly from fever, caused by the continuous dampness. It rains every day and the ground is never dry. As yet there has been no yellow fever, simply malaria, but that keeps the men unfit for duty. I have had two spells of it myself, but am all right at present.
Corporal Wynkoop and Dean and Sergeant Breen were wounded and have been sent to New York. I was shot through the right arm, but would not give it up and came back to the front; have been doing duty with the troop right along, but my arm is so sore I wound constantly troubles me. Captain Church, our regimental physician, has reported on the case and I expect an honorable discharge soon. It is rather disappointing, but after all what matter. I think the fighting is about over and I have done my duty. We had a hot time while it lasted and we all "remembered the Maine." A "Rough Rider" can get any thing he asks for nowadays and we have earned it.
We are camped about five miles back of Santiago among the hills on account of the healthy location. Very few of the boys have had a chance to go into the city. I have been fortunate in that respect, as the opportunity was given me to come up from Siboney on one of the lighters, seeing the remaining avenues of Morro castle and other fortifications in the channel, passing the wrecks of two Spanish warships, the sunken Merrimac and landing at the dock in front of the city. The city is built in the regulation old style, Spanish cat-roofed houses, barred windows, narrow streets, etc. The streets are all on an incline of about 45 degrees, the city being built on the hill-side, paved with cobble stones. There are no vehicles, except two-wheeled carts drawn by the smallest, and the best of horses imaginable. There are no animals on the island fit to look at, neither is there any game. The grass which grows here seems to be a rotten growth from the damp ground and affords no sustenance for animals.
The Santa Fe boys, McCabe, McKee, Skinner, McKay and others have been much worried about mail. We write letter after letter and post them, only to learn that not one ever reached their destination. I have written eight letters to Santa Fe, and found out only a few days ago that not one had been received. There is something wrong with the mail service. The boys asked me to mention this for publication that their friends and relatives might know they have written home.
Today being the last of the month we shall have muster. It will be vastly different from our last one, as there is not much of troop E left to answer roll call. The dead, wounded and sick have brought us down to a fine point, but still we have been more fortunate than some of the other troops. We have received no pay for two months and do not expect any until we reach the United States, which will bring pay day about the 1st of September.
I see by the papers that 100 more recruits for the "Rough Riders" have been started for the front. I cannot see what will be done with them. We left four troops at Tampa besides 14 men from each troop that came to Cuba. Those men have never had the chance to fire a shot, and judging from the appearance of things never will. Still they may have different plans at Washington, of which nothing is known here, Quilen sabe.
Our daily wetting is about to begin so I will close, hoping to write next from some point nearer home.

Corporal Wynkoop's Letter.
Corporal Harman Wynkoop, who is in the hospital at Fort Monroe, Va., has written to friends in the city as follows: Fort Monroe, Va., Aug. 8.—In the campaign before Santiago the "Rough Riders" were at all times placed in the lead of the army, but can not say that we did any better work than the regulars, or were in any greater danger than the 1st and 10th regular cavalry were. These two regiments had detachments in the battle of La Quasina and they did great work. It was in that engagement that the "Rough Riders" became famous. Of it you have already read so much that I will not repeat the tale, besides I am asked a dozen times a day by visitors to relate it to them, until I am sick of it.
My sensation under fire for the first time was not what I always expected it would be. The only feeling I had was a little ripple ran through my system as if a very slightly charged electric wire had been touched. It was but for a moment, and thereafter I felt no more concern. I was curious enough to look at the boys about me to see what sort of an effect the first volley had on them, and strange to say, only one seemed excited and nervous. After this my mind was on the Spaniards. The battle was a pretty one, but there were many sad sights, and a few humorous ones.
You remember how we used to look at the cartoons in the papers, showing families of starved Cubans with buzzards sitting about and soaring over them waiting for their death. Well, I thought those pictures were only for the purpose of arousing the feelings of the humane Americans, but when I was in Cuba I saw such scenes with my own eyes. It was an awful sight. When the quartermaster issued them bacon, hard tack, and coffee and sugar, the poor people actually sat down and ate that bacon raw. They would eat anything, even the mildewed hard tack thrown in the road. Previous to our landing the Cubans lived on coconuts, bananas and mangoes entirely, which caused a very peculiar disease. Their limbs were as thin as the bones would allow, while their stomachs were distended in a frightful manner. Their eyes had a far-away, dull look and they were very stupid. The scene was so sickening that I do not like to think of it.
The island is itself a beauty, "the garden spot of the world," as an immigration agent would say. Fruit! Great heavens! And to think that it must not be eaten. Not to eat it means a fever of one kind or another. It is hardly necessary to say that nearly every one yielded to the temptation and suffered from his

No danger in Schilling's Best Tea. It's delicious besides.

Indiscretion. Out of an army of 18,000 men, 5,000 were down with fever and 1,300 wounded. Right here in Fort Monroe there is a death nearly every day which the newspapers never hear of, so quietly are the dead taken to the death room and afterwards buried.
I tell you, Pat Wesley and Fred McKee are as good as they are made as soldiers and fighters. They said nothing before the battle, but once in them they did fine execution. There were many cases of individual bravery I could mention which fell under my eye, but for steady work Wesley and McKee are dandies. Wesley's wound is a peculiar one. The ball entered about a half inch above the right elbow, as near the center as possible, passed through the bone and out the other side, leaving the arm and bone just as good as ever. The wound hardly amounted to more than two jabs from a shoemaker's awl, but because of the injury to the bone it is giving him considerable trouble temporarily. He refused to come north and returned to the regiment. McKee was not wounded, but I'll bet a dollar that some part of his clothing was cut by bullets. If not, it was a miracle.
I will not attempt to describe the country we had to fight in, it is impossible. How we ever managed to get over it and through the trenches will never be explained. No picture can ever reproduce it. The heat and rains, too, were terrible. When night came on we had no dry clothes, no bed to crawl into and no supper to eat, but laid down on the wet, muddy ground wet through and through, only to rise in the morning and resume the battle. Who wouldn't be a soldier? I would go through it all again, though.
I was wounded on the 2nd of July and on the 8th was taken with pneumonia and came north. I nearly died from the fever, and as I was recovering was attacked by the malaria, but am getting better now and hope to be discharged from the hospital in about three weeks, and may possibly be discharged from the service for disability.

MINOR CITY TOPICS.

The city council should meet this evening.
U. S. weather bureau forecast for New Mexico: Generally fair tonight and Tuesday.
The superiority of Santa Fe's fruit product is satisfactorily attested by the rush orders by mail and telegraph that are daily being received by our local orchardists.
A. M. Dettlebach is engaged in sending out the posters for the Horticultural fair. The advertising matter will be sent to all parts of the territory and a large attendance is anticipated.
At present seven persons are confined in the Hotel de Kinsell, otherwise known as the county jail, four awaiting the action of the grand jury and three accused of the very common offense of insanity.
There will be a meeting of all those who are to take part in the cake walk at Gray's hall this evening for a rehearsal. The participants in the entertainments are requested to be present promptly at 8 o'clock.
The holders of 50 cent tickets of admission to the cake walk, which takes place tomorrow evening at Gray's hall, will be entitled to admission to the ball to be given immediately after the entertainment.
Saturday the thermometer at the local weather bureau registered as follows: Maximum temperature, 85 degrees at 2 p. m.; minimum 57 degrees at 5:30 a. m. The mean temperature for the 24 hours was 71 degrees.
Yesterday the thermometer at the local weather bureau registered as follows: Maximum temperature, 84 degrees at 3:15 p. m.; minimum, 59 degrees at 6 a. m. The mean temperature for the 24 hours was 72 degrees.
P. J. Smith, who has been suffering from mental derangement since he was overcome by effects of the sun some weeks ago, has been released from restraint and his friends and relatives are hopeful that a perfect cure will soon be effected.
The members of the band wish to thank Secretary Wallace and United States Marshal Foraker for the $15 given them by those two gentlemen for playing at the peace celebration on Friday night. The money will be used to purchase new music, and thus the entire city will derive pleasure from the generous donations made by the officials.
The proceeds of the cake walk, which will be given tomorrow evening at Gray's hall, will be turned over to the Woman's Board of Trade and the Ladies' Soldiers' Aid Society. The societies which will be benefited by the entertainment are deserving of the support of the public and the attendance at the entertainment should crowd the house. The cake walk will be a novelty, as well.

It is understood that, in response to an urgent invitation from the Democratic territorial central committee, Congressman Bailey, of Texas, will attend and address the Democratic territorial convention at Deming in October.

Following this event the distinguished Democratic minority leader in congress will visit Albuquerque, Santa Fe, Las Vegas and other points in New Mexico.
Tickets are on sale at Ireland's pharmacy for the cake walk to be given by the society belles and beaux at Gray's hall tomorrow evening. As the attendance promises to be very large, those wishing to secure good seats should reserve them at once.

Wanted by a young lady of culture, position as English companion or governess in refined family. Has some knowledge of Spanish. References. Address, Alys S. Johnson, Crook, Logan county, Colorado.
